

September 1 2012

Hines, Jim. Libriomancer

Isaac Vainio is a librarian and a libriomancer, a special kind of magic-user who has the ability to make objects from books manifest in reality. Removed from field work due to an inability to control his magic under stress, Isaac is working a more mundane job as a librarian in a small-town Michigan public library and doing database duty on the side for his other employers, Die Zwelf Portenaere?the Porters. However, the Porters?a magical organization founded by Johannes Gutenberg to manage libriomancy?are under attack, and Isaac, off-duty or no, is no exception. Narrowly saved from vampires by the intercession of a dryad friend, Isaac soon discovers that all the different species of vampires?all of whom were originally created out of books, in a unique genre twist?have banded together to fight against what they perceive as attacks by the Porters. The few Porters Isaac can reach, however, have no idea what?s going on and Isaac, along with dryad Lena Greenwood and Smudge the fire spider, fling themselves into the investigation, trying to first convince the vampires that the Porters are no threat and second to discover just who the villain actually is and what he?s done with the Porters? founder, Gutenberg himself.

Fast-paced, funny, unique, intelligent, and entirely engaging, this series opener is an absolute hit. Librarians and booklovers of all stripes will be trying to master libriomancy themselves after a visit to Hines? world.

Reserve a copy

RA Blog Categories:

Fantasy

Fiction

Source URL: <http://hplibrary.org/bibliofiles/hines-jim-libriomancer?page=14>